I have learned that success is to be measured not so much by the position that one has reached in life as by the obstacles which he has overcome while trying to succeed.

-Booker T. Washington

Mankind is in the process of a physical and mental degeneration which is producing a resurgence of the ape within him, and which may plunge civilization into ultimate chaos.

- Ernest R. Hooton

Let us confess it: the human situation is always desperate.

The Hidden Poem

on a piece of blue striped notebook paper folded inwards, from bottom to top in a legal sized white (not so white anymore) envelope

between the 33rd and 34th pages of the Dec. 14, 1932 issue of "Life" at the top of a ten year stack of Life's taped into a brown card board box that use to contain Johnson and Johnson baby oil in the bottom

right corner of a deep, dark, musty wine cellar
behind the crate
of Rose

from 1935

in one of the Catacombs
under the basement of a not so small Mansion at the end of Broadview Boulevard on the tip of the Keynine Peninsula in Alaska

towards the north of north america and certainly the northern hemisphere
in a world of this galaxy
inside of a universe and beyond .....

have you read this hidden poem?

I couldn't find it.

Misty Winter's Night

Misty winter's night
purple snowy haze
my soul is split up and is falling inside of each descending
white flake

Pagan spirits dance
in your storm clouds
floating skeletons
tiptoe through your skies

wolf witches howl with your wind mighty moose prance
through your fields
misty winter's night
introduce me to your stomping storm gods together we will sing spirit songs to those goddesses we yearn to hold on earth and above

misty winter's night
take me into your arms let me drift up into your endless void drift, and drift on disappearing into your purple snowy haze ...

- Tom Caplan

Springtime Thaw

First taste of Spring after the long harsh winter.

Will the sun ever shine?

Here it reigns, beckoning with smiling warmth.

Hesitate . . . reluctant . . . afraid of the last harsh bite of the dwindling cold. Bitter remembrances of the past, fooled by an attack of hidden fierceness, betraying fragile trust.

Fearful step, to open one bud at a time,
hoping to bloom in full brilliance of this new season.

- Beth Porritt

I do not know what I was playing,
Or what I was dreaming then;
But I struck one chord of music,
Like the sound of a great Amen

Enthusiasm, Excitement, and Encouragement

Although everyone recognized Sr. Shawna Howard's enthusiasm and love for people, sometimes Shawna felt that people thought she was too hyper and spasy; and, to this accusation she responded, "Don't be too inhibited to let your wild, eccentric side out - make life spontaneous!"

Along with spending time with her twin sister and reading, Shawna was quite a movie fan. Volleyball has also been a favorite pastime; she was on the Junior Olympics team for two years. Additionally, Shawna has always loved singing and dancing, and she was a member of Organized Crime. Her love for dancing spawned her enthusiasm for aerobics: "It is exercising yet a form of dance at the same time."

Her freshman year, Shawna started the aerobic program at C.C. through the Boettcher Health Center. Starting the program enabled her to learn about the administration, insurance, and security involved in such a project. Her experience working with administration got her interested in the Admissions Program; she was a traveling campus ambassador and gave campus tours.

Besides aerobics and work for the admissions office, Shawna spent much of her time in different leadership roles within Gamma Phi Beta. As social chair, she arranged for speakers from the community to speak, not only for the Greeks, but also for the entire campus. Shawna encouraged Gamma Phi's to sponsor things for the whole campus because she felt sororities were often estranged from the campus: "They're off in their own world." Therefore, incorporating people who weren't in the Greek systems became a very important goal. Shawna was also RUSH counselor and Panhellenic representative, member of the executive committee, and recording secretary.

Shawna's involvement in Gamma Phi declined somewhat as she took the position of recording secretary and the encompassing burden of a residential adviser: "I'm so glad I did it, so glad . . . I wanted to work with a freshmen wing because I needed exposure to newcomers; people who were excited to be here."

After learning all about Shawna's dedication to C.C. and its student body, it wasn't too surprising to hear her major: anthropology - the study of man. "Talk about inclusive, it includes biology, history, economics, sociology, and psychology." Finding languages fascinating, linguistic anthropology is her specialty; "Language is a window to look into people - learn how different people really think." Her four years of Latin reflected her interest: "It's like a puzzle." Her major provided an inclusive study on mankind and a funnel for her curiosity; while, her business minor gave her a practical foundation.

IT'S REALLY NONE OF OUR BUSINESS BUT . . .

It began in his wing and spread to the whole campus; dorm chalkboards read, "No mail today, it's Art Fish Day". Not only was there an Art Fish look alike contest, but also a banquet at Taylor where a girl was passed down the table. This was the result of a "brainstorm of a few friends". Sr. Art Fish called it an "escape from reality, something I like to do." "I'm a Beta and I won't say anything beyond that," Fish continued. What made Fish so special that, as a freshman, he was so honored and felt like "king of the world"?

Here's just a few things that made him stand out. Art played trombone in Christmas and Easter choirs but he always regreted that there weren't more opportunities to play year-round. In addition, he is a Nugget photographer; photography is one of his main hobbies. Art also worked on the Leviathan. He enjoys the mountains as well as skiing and biking on trips like the Aspen Bike Trip. A semester abroad in Lunesburg, Germany added variety to his junior year. As you can see, Art likes to "make life interesting".

When questioned further, however, Art said very frankly. "some of it's none of your business." Sarcastically worried, Fish said, "I hope I don't have to file libel suit." "I don't think he'll have to - I was pretty nice. Even though a lot of this sounds like B.S. to Art, he's "not got to get shit for it!"

EATING BOOKS

Dee Baker

"I'm psychotically dependent on the English Language," said Sr. Dee Baker reinforcing his belief that he was a "very verbal person". Not only did Dee express himself verbally, but he wrote swamp, a major CC production and, as he said, he was still "polishing it up".

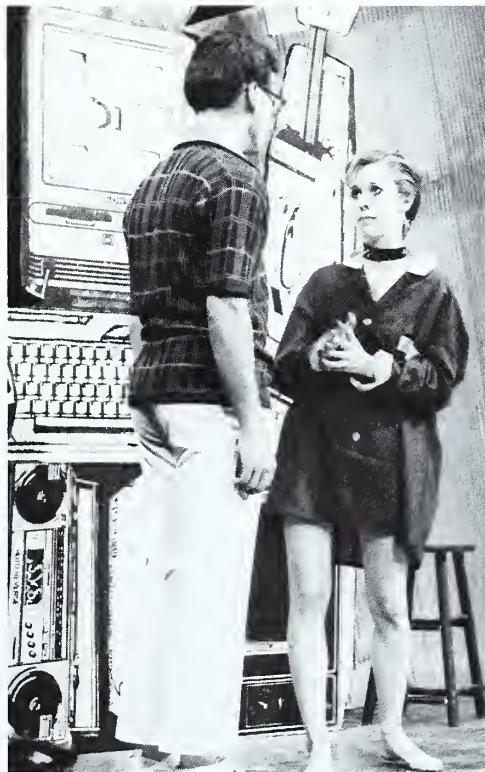

Dee was a philosophy major who had been in plays like "Finger of God", "Candide", and "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead". The last of which was performed in Shove Chapel and also one of Dee's favorites.

Since second grade he had been involved in the performing arts. "I get in the shows. Whether I can act is a good question," he said with a chuckle, although performing was an important part of his life. "For me theatre is stepping outside myself. It is a very important expression of myself."

Along with his theatre interests, Dee found time to windsurf, sing and see lots of movies. "Nightmare on Elm Street" was surprisingly one of his favorites, and as he said, "I don't kid about movies."

With a background like this what could possibly be next? "I think I'll eat books," said Dee, and he probably did.

CONFIDENT PERFORMANCE

"You can be an idiot in real life but on stage you have to reach a certain transparency so that the meaning of the play comes through to the audience - never inhibit the meaning," Sr. Alan Beecher hypothesized about his experience in theatre.

Alan is everywhere: he's a SAGA meal ticket checker, a performer in every other play produced, a dancer in the spring dance show - Terpes Chore, a hand-picked student by Hanya Home for a dance scholarship, a voice scholarships/recipient, and a residence advisor.

His theatre experience also encompass a comic televised half-hour benefit performance for foster parents for foster children. Additionally, The Children's Theatre in the Park, "Play Factory", have provided a summertime position for this talented actor.

Aside from his acting, singing, and dancing, Alan takes few things seriously. His own future is no exception: "I want to be a flight attendant." self-assured and entertaining Beecher flamboyantly concluded, "I'm sure you re all very nice people and I'd like to get to know you, but, truthfully, I'd rather be dancing."

FALL BLOCK BREAKS

Aspen-Bound Bicyclers

Twelve o'clock on the last Wednesday afternoon of the block, many students happily departed campus and headed for good times in Aspen. Unlike several of their car riding friends, fifty students and faculty members embarked on the 160 mile Aspen-bound bicycle trip first block break. Sponsored annually by the Outdoor Recreation Center, this trip allowed students to experience the pain, exhaustion, and exhilaration that results from 48 hours of pedal power. Junior Marcie Leavitt exclaimed, "I learned never to do it again on a mountain bike and to always have a lot of champagne waiting for me in Aspen!"

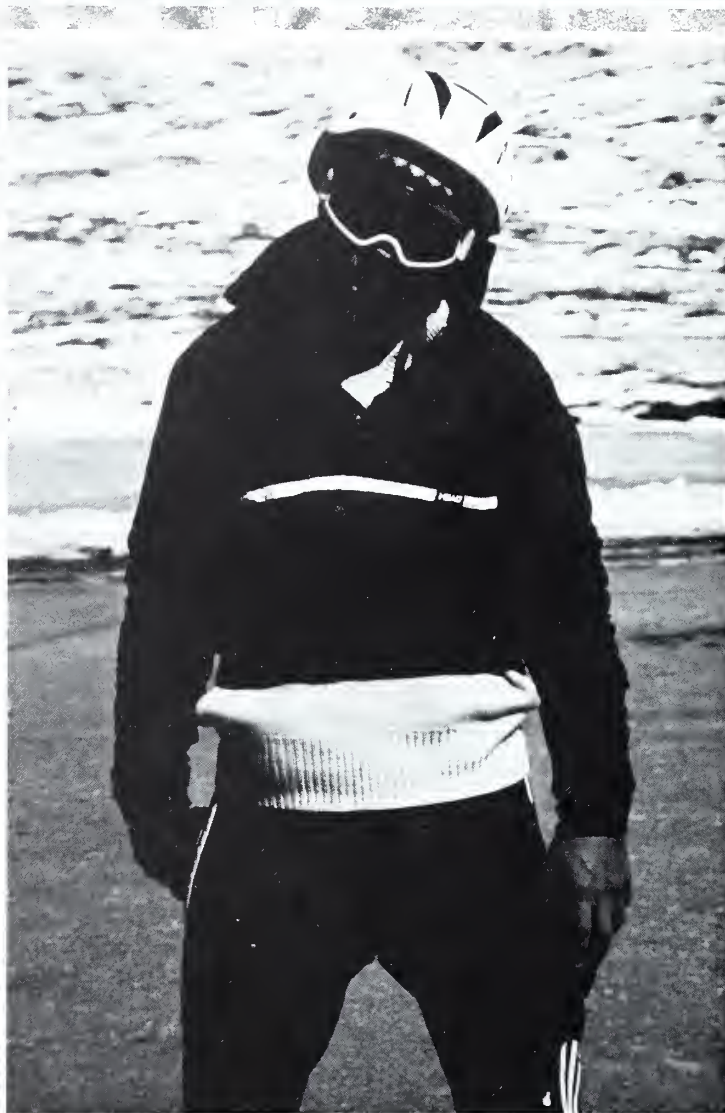

Most students on the biking trip were devoted bicycle riders with solid physical training; however, others had never been on a long distance trip before. "It was definitely hard for me," explained Fr. Gretchen Haegle, "but what really helped me was the support our group gave each other. We all pushed each other to the end. If I had done it alone I wouldn't have been able to finish."

Paraprofessional John "Buggy" Burke, who has led this trip eight times, felt the trip was challenging and left the riders with a great sense of accomplishment. "It's a tough ride and you're tired when you finish, but you have a good feeling about yourself," said Burke. "This year the group was especially good in that we had a variety of ages. The trip really helped bring these people together; not only to ride, but also to cook meals, set up camp, and all survive together," he continued.

Reaching the top of Independence Pass was unanimously the highlight of the trip. "It was a long ride straight uphill," explained Leavitt, "but we cheered each other to the top. When we got up there we had a beautiful view, and we got to coast all the way down!" Soph. Karen Schachter didn't get to enjoy her coasting time as much as the rest of her group because she had to ride the 22 mile stretch with a flat tire.

Haegle described the trip as being a group effort. "I was really impressed with how the expert bikers helped the slower ones. When you're biking you get to meet people and talk to them - that is, if you have the breath!"

Frosh Take FOOT Trips

Visiting grandparents, hanging out in the dorms or even preparing for second block were not on first block break's agenda. Many freshmen spent their first block break on Freshmen Outdoor Orientation Trips sponsored by the Outdoor Recreation Center. The purpose of FOOT programs was to acquaint new students with Colorado wilderness. With trips ranging from bicycling to backpacking to sailing, the best part of these excursions was the opportunity it gave freshmen to meet fellow students.

"The best part of our horsepacking trip was not only the entertainment of watching everyone, including myself, try to ride a horse, but getting to know people outside of my dorm. It made me feel comfortable with meeting new people and it introduced me to the Rockies," explained Fr. Dave Baylis.

"Even though you're smelly and dirty, backpacking is a lot of fun," exclaimed Fr. Tom Doud. "I learned how to backpack with low environmental impact, and I especially enjoyed sitting like a jellyfish in Glenwood Hot Springs."

Fr. John Stolz said he enjoyed living with a group of new people and sharing an appreciation of a beautiful area on his ecology backpacking trip to the San Juan Mountains. Stolz concluded, "I learned the names of a few flowers, but I've forgotten them now. The best part of the trip was the feeling of accomplishment we all had after climbing a 12,000 foot peak. I would spend every block break on a FOOT trip if I could."

Wing wars, flyers, and graphics for Benny's and Wild Pizza have been the work of advertising manager Sr. John Baitlon (Slash). "Benny's advertising position is a good opportunity for any art major. The job experience is great for anyone interested in commercial art. It's kind of like running your own small business," Slash explained. Slash's talents extended beyond graphics and commercial art: he held the position of art critic as well as a weekly cartoonist for the Catalyst.

Between critiquing, managing, and designing, Slash began painting among other artists' murals on a levy in Pueblo. Slash and his CSU co-workers were attempting an artistic style to enter in the nationwide Levi's contest: a pair of jeans being pulled out of the water by a fish hook; the shadow of which is a fish on a hook.

Reflecting on the cooperative effort on the mural, Slash commented, "It's hard to work with other artists — different ideas. In addition, winter wasn't the best time of year to have the contest!" Slash said, revealing his discouragement.

This serious and perfecting artist's future plans include graduate school, hopefully on the East or West Coast and a career in illustration or design.

BUSINESS/ECONOMICS

Looking to the Future

"I've always wanted to go to a place like Africa," remarked Sr. Scott Demarias. And he is. Scott and his wife, Gabby, joined the Peace Corps for a two year assignment beginning shortly after graduation. They're both teaching in Zaire; he in the social sciences and math, and she in the natural sciences.

Scott is truly a scholar and an athlete. Though he presided over Blue Key Honor Society, chaired the Student Development Committee and helped membership with the Phi Beta Kappa and Pi Gamma Mu, all in his senior year, he still found the time to play first-string quarterback and fulfill his responsibilities as Head Resident of Bemis and McGregor Halls.

A strong interest in international studies led Scott to choose to major in Political Economy. "I wanted to expand my world view," he said, explaining his choice of major. Yet, had he the opportunity to make any changes on the road he paved during his college career, it would have been to study abroad for a year. He reasoned, "You can't get a good grasp of the world in four years." After his Peace Corps tour, Scott plans to attend the University of Chicago, to be followed by a career in law or, perhaps, world banking.

Reading, mountain-climbing, and camping are a few interests that occupy Scott's leisure time. He is also known to indulge in a game of golf, basketball, or football. Scott relishes commitment in a person. He sees this quality in John F. Kennedy, a figure, whom, he describes as "a man of vision". Scott especially admires this merit in those faced with what seems unsurmountable odds. He added, "I think it is this quality that enables these underdogs to overcome the Kareem Abdul Jabars of the world."

CLASSICS

Instigating Intellectual Activism

I can't see someone from CC litter," said Sr. Tessa Reese, "because it produces a wholesome kind of person." Tessa was one of these "wholesome people" which was cultivated in CC's environment, providing Tessa with many opportunities to expand her knowledge. "You could go to a lecture every night if you had the time. There is so much offered here."

Tessa enjoyed these opportunities and became an "active participant with intellectual organizations". Among these organizations, Tessa was involved in CCCA's Financial Aid Committee, and Political Student Union, and the Political Theory Discussion Group. Additionally, Tessa was elected to the honors group, Phi Beta Kappa. She received the Edith Bramhall Award.

This apparent interest in politics designated Tessa's major, Classic History Politics. "Understanding of classics is so relevant to modern people and modern society." Capturing her interest in classics, Tessa helped make the elaborate costumes for "Medea". Also demonstrating this interest in art, she designed the art section of the Leviathan. Her interest in art, classics, and politics were balanced by skiing and hiking.

Law was also a compelling interest of Tessa's. While deciding whether to be a lawyer, she worked on an internship in the El Paso County Court Building with a judge. This opportunity allowed her access to a law library as well as a real prison. Influencing her decision, the internship nudged Tessa towards a paralegal firm in San Francisco before graduate school. One way or another, Tessa will accomplish her sole wish: "I want to affect the world while I study it."

DRAMA/DANCE

The Student, The Man, The Aspiring Yuppie

Sr. Kris Kamm shared these words of wisdom, "Don't be afraid to try anything. You'll be surprised at what you can do." Consequently, this attitude has enabled him to venture into a wide array of activities ranging from crosscountry running to piano playing. It is also this determination that chanced him into a study of the theater.

Wayzata, a small town just outside Minneapolis, is home for the drama major. Having completed his degree requirements, he plans to attend a graduate school in theater after a year pause. Ultimately, he hopes to be involved in both the performance and production facets of theater.

Kris actively participated in the performing arts at CC. During his senior year alone, he was involved in five productions; performances in "Time of Your Life", "Swamp", and "The Jew of Andorra" were among the freshest and most memorable of the year. He also displayed both fine acting and directing abilities in "Come Back to the Five and Dime Store, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean". In addition, his dancing talents were evidenced and showcased in the Dance Department's Spring Production, "Signs". Kris received the Broadway Theater League Award at the Convocation.

A film buff, Kris also regards photography, aerobics and independent exercises as other leisure interests. He also appreciates excellence in any given field, and it is the beholder of this attribute that comprises Kris's ideal of the personal hero. Kris holds Mikael Baryshnikov, Greg Louganis, and his own father in this light. His admiration focuses especially on their talent, courage, self-discipline, and dedication. "I don't have to be like them, but I can learn from them." Apparently he has learned much from his heroes, because "talented", "dedicated", and "hardworking" are a few of the merits bestowed upon him by his peers.

Can't Elude Fame

"I'd love to act professionally if I could," said Sr. Jimbo Ager. Jimbo had been in dozens of performances while at CC; one of which was "Time of Your Lie". Thoughtful character roles that don't require the leading male, the macho type, were the parts which Jimbo found most attractive.

Although he said, "I do love to perform," Jimbo realistically commented that he wouldn't make any money that way; so he'll probably sell used cars. "I wish I had something more altruistic to say; like, I was going to save the whales." Later he'd like to go to law school and go into politics, enhancing his double major in political science and history.

Besides performing and studying, Jimbo likes to spend time with people, even though he defines himself as a loner. During his sophomore and junior year, Jimbo was on CCCA; "At first, I thought — Oh, God! Look at all this bureaucracy." He soon discovered, however, that it was the best way to learn about the school.

Also, Jimbo enjoys farming. Additionally, Jimbo likes to drive professionally; he drove buses for Glacier National Park one summer. Another summer, he went to summer school at Harvard. There, he took a course in human sexual behavior, and he received only a B. Jimbo noted, "It would have helped if I had had a Lab partner."

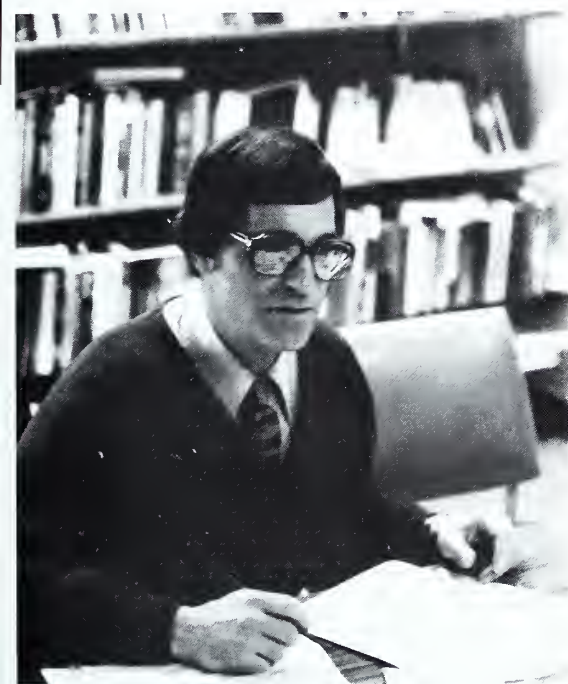

It was very obvious that Jimbo had a keen insight into the human condition. Maybe he acquired it in his character roles or driving buses or with his experiences with people. Perhaps it's due to his "great love for honesty and truth".

According to Jimbo, his fame was also unexplainable. Claiming modestly that he hadn't added a lot to CC, Jimbo said he was just famous because he was famous; he was famous in spite of himself, modeling after Woody Allen's character Zelig.

Immersed In Music

As a sophomore, Amy was one of the group of music students who appeared on "Ripley's Believe It Or Not" with Professor Scott who played the piano not by the keys, but by the strings. Even though Amy classified it as a "silly show", she agreed that it was good exposure for CC.

Playing the violin, Amy studied music with her own individual professor during the summer at the Aspen Music Festival. This opportunity allowed her to "immerse herself in music". Music ensembles, chamber choruses, the Colorado Springs Symphony, coffee houses and variety shows were a "great supplement" to her academic studies in music. "I find I learn so much outside the classroom," Amy said.

Amy also was the senior class agent: helping with the organization of senior events, picking the graduation speaker, and funding Senior Class parties. Along with music and class coordination, Amy also enjoyed intramural hockey and softball.

Although she wished for a greater performing role at CC, Amy never wanted to transfer to a larger school or conservatory because "a liberal arts education is in vogue".

*Charismatic,
Well-Rounded, and Organized*

Well, liberal arts colleges always promise to turn out well-rounded people, and CC certainly kept this promise to Sr. Dave Pollak. Dave stretched himself between skiing and committees such as the Academic Program Committee. Although he's an American Political Economics major, Dave is also "a lunatic sports fan" and a devoted musician.

You may have seen him at Poor Richard's with Sr. Tim O'Brien playing the guitar and singing. Together they made up a bluegrass duo called the "Southbound Mothers". Dave said, "It was a good time bringing bluegrass to the campus." In addition to the Southbound Mothers, it was his dream to pick the best musicians to play the best music and form a group. This group was founded with much hard work and time, and it was called "Organized Crime". "With ten people in the band, you have to be very organized."

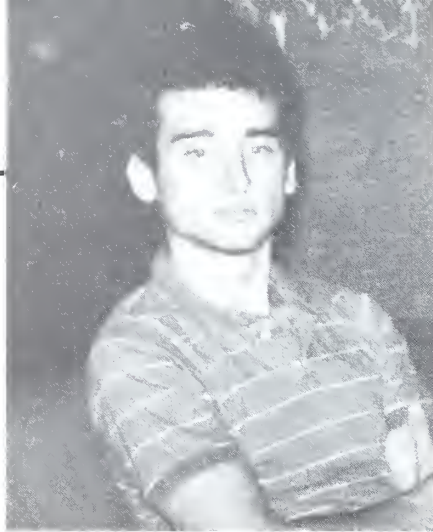

His interest in politics and economics influenced his involvement in the political organizations on campus. As Chair of the Political Union, Kane said, "It is a myth that there is so much apathy on this campus. If you come to one of the meetings, you'd see what I mean. They're there — both the left and the right."

With the formation of CCCA and growing concern about apartheid on campus and in the community, Dave's role in the Committee for Responsible Investments became even more important. Investments were received on a moral basis. The Committee as well as Dave supported trying to influence companies with divestment; but, it encouraged the combined efforts of colleges and universities mounted in large attacks in order to have a meaningful impact.

Dave's leadership extended to his fraternity; he was Pledge President of the Phi Delta Thetas in addition to Treasurer. His experience with the Phi Deltas was what Dave called his "most enriching and rewarding experience at CC — both mentally and socially". He emphasized that sharing the same table with guys he had somewhat similar interests with provoked many debates on current issues which he found intellectually stimulating.

As Dave has been playing a leadership role throughout his career at CC, it is very likely that he gained the charisma and speech impact that he'd need to hold a public office as mayor or governor of Connecticut.

The Bomb of Conservative Ideals That Shook CC

How many people do you know choose a college from a guide book? During his sophomore year in college in New York, Sr. Marcus Hartman was bored. He read the Fisk Selective Guide to Colleges which allotted CC the most academic and social points and "decided to transfer, sight unseen". CC hasn't been the same since.

Marcus has always been interested in political science and he has poured his views all over the pages of the Catalyst. His conservative ideals have often presented problems for him. But Marcus said, "It's O.K., that's what makes me tick, politics. I like writing about it because it's all-encompassing; you never see someone mad about the Pythagorean Theorem. Whenever you can talk politics it ties people together, even if their views are different."

Unlike most seniors, Marcus doesn't have to worry about getting a job in June. Having spent two summers in the Marine Corps, Marcus is ready to go to Florida in September to begin flight training. After that, "who knows, I may even run for an office," Marcus said with a smile. After all, as Marcus proclaimed, the center of his life is politics: "It is a combination of living, eating, breathing for me, it's both my major and my hobby."

Different Roles Expand Learning

Planning the senior sneak, dinner dance, and class parties, Sr. Chris Greenwalt definitely spent a lot of time organizing social events as class agent. Chris said, "I love diving into things — I like knowing as much as I can and being active helps."

Chris has been very active with the Outdoor Recreation Center; she has been an ORC leader with the Outward Bound program. Loving the outdoors, Chris was the Hall Resident Advisor of the Environmental Issues house which consisted mostly of ENACT and ORC people. Learning through her house complemented her interest in the environment and in counseling.

In addition to her demonstration of leadership as an ORC leader and HR, Chris was also a peer counselor. Also, she worked with handicapped children. Chris said that this interest in people was due to a "need to understand people better". One way Chris attempted to learn about human experience is through drama. "Roles help me look at the world differently."

Throughout her career in drama, Chris designed the sets and lights of most of the major productions on campus. Her work in drama extends to acting in productions such as "Enemy of the People". Additionally, Chris has directed productions such as Sr. Dee Baker's "SWAMP". Chris commented that directing "SWAMP" was a very valuable opportunity as well as one of her most trying experiences. "It was interesting to integrate 30 students with art, psychology, drama, and still come up with a final product."

Chris owes her active participation to living in the French house with a lot of wild people who broke her out of her shell and helped her fluency in French at the same time. "I loved it here, CC allowed me to do everything I wanted to do," Chris remarked, and this was obviously true.

Reserve Officers Training Corp was back this year after a prolonged absence from campus. The faculty and administration voted to maintain the R.O.T.C. program with the commissioning of the first two cadets in ten years, a new era of military education emerged.

Both, Sr. Brian Boyce and Sr. Scott Powell, were commissioned as second lieutenants. Additionally, Boyce was elected to serve active duty in the Military Intelligence; while, Powell was granted a term of duty in Army Aviation. Other cadets currently enrolled in the program are Jrs. Scott Thomas and Charles Bradley. The official reinstitution of the R.O.T.C. was expected to attract an increasing number of participants of the program.

BACCHUS

BACCHUS is an acronym which stands for "Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students". Operated by students who are concerned about the abuse of alcohol on college and university campuses, BACCHUS members are not opposed to drinking; rather, they advocate the responsible use of alcohol. To promote their goals, BACCHUS sponsored alcohol and drug awareness programs: BACCHUS brought speakers to campus such as Dr. Bill Olson who gave an update on cocaine and marijuana, and it also organized social functions which provided a focus other than alcohol. -

Chaverim

Presidents Becky Derby and Amy Weiss of Chaverim were dedicated to the promotion of Jewish culture. Chaverim provided celebrations for many holidays such as Passover to encourage a better understanding of Jewish history, beliefs, and traditions. On a more somber side, they also sponsored a Holocaust Remembrance week, designed to teach the community about the past, to help prevent a similar future. This included the movie, Genocide.

The Political Theory Discussion Group

The Political Theory Discussion Group, led by Political Science Prof. Tim Fuller, discussed political works in an informal atmosphere. The topics for discussion included the ancient writings of Xenophon and the 20th C. writings of philosopher Hannah Frandt. The year concluded with a reading the discussion of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe's Faust. This enhanced the academic life at C.C. and exposed members to work with politically oriented as well as liberally educated students should not miss. -

Backbone Brings Beijing

Asia is a newly formed organization of students and faculty interested in Asia. The backbone of ASIA was Robyn Snyderman who "made ASIA a reality". The main objective of this group is to expand our knowledge as well as the community's awareness of Asian politics, culture and environment. Various lectures, films, musical groups, social events, and food demonstrations are frequently organized throughout the year to accomplish these goals.

Activities ranged from a festive celebration of Chinese New Year, a Japanese film series, slide shows on India, China and Japan, and speakers who had studied in Asian countries. Additionally, the organization was very fortunate to ascertain the performance of the Beijing Conservatory from the People's Republic of China.

Chicano Enlightenment And Education

M.E.Ch.A.

In the spirit of sharing cultures, the annual Rainbow Jam was created. With the help of the other minority groups, and some fraternities, MEChA held this all-campus party in order to unite and to celebrate the minorities on campus as well as all C.C. students.

MEChA (Movimiento Estudiante Chicano di Atzlan) is a student organization designed to promote and share Chicano culture with the C.C. community. Through various activities MEChA sponsors, the group aims to enlighten and educate students about this rich culture.

Striving to make ties with the Colorado Springs community, for Christmas, MEChA sponsored a Christmas party for under-privileged children, ages 4-11. Gifts were given and games were played in the PACC house.

The main thrust of MEChA's activities was during Chicano Awareness Week. The festivities consisted of singers, films and panel discussions. Additionally, Carlos Fuentes, world renowned novelist was able to speak as a Lloyd Lecture Series guest. MEChA's Cinco de Mayo all-campus picnic and music in the quad proved to be an all-around success. Also attracting a lot of attention, the Immigration panel and dance featuring Los Latinos added to both the social and educational dimensions of MEChA.

Circle K

Service activities filled Circle K's agenda; the coordinator of which was Bryan Saunders. One of the primary focuses of the organization was to continue its joint cooperation with Acts 19:11, a program designed to help handicapped gain better coordination through horseback riding. Additionally, parties and activities such as ice skating were planned with emotionally disturbed girls from Myrom Stratton Home. Circle K has also gained much appreciation through its Birthday Cake/Care Package Project.

Chamber Chorus

Auditioned yearly under the direction of Professor Don Jenkins, Chamber Chorus is a select group of approximately 20 voices. Besides the annual Spring concert, this group sings in dorm concerts at Christmas and performs for alumni audiences. the Chamber Chorus performs works for a variety of periods ranging from madrigals of the 15th century to CC songs.

- Carey Ewing

Political Union

Co-Chairpersons Sr. Dave Pollak and Mark Herrick led the Political Union to a year of lively and informed political dialogue and debate. The Political Union sponsored the US Ambassador Peter De Vos, who lectured on "US Policy in Southern Africa". Additionally, weekly round table discussions were a forum for debate on major policy controversies. These discussions included current events from Arab relations and terrorism, to Apartheid, and to the US Budget Crisis. The group concluded the active year with a successful congregation of Air Force Academy Cadets and C.C. students, gathered to discuss "Morality in the Nuclear Age".

RUSH

Rush

Where are you from?" or "What class are you taking?" were lines often used when trying to pick up on someone, but during sorority Rush that was all the pledges heard. Fr. Cathy Bouton said, "After the first day of answering the same questions over and over, I wanted to make a tape recording of answers for the next day!"

Going to four parties a day gave the rushees an opportunity to meet lots of different people and to find out what sororities were really like. "Before Rush I was pretty sure I wasn't going to pledge, but I went through it with an open mind," said Fr. Lexie Gongsos.

"I was pretty nervous during Rush because you feel like you are being torn between four groups of people and you have to figure out where you fit in within a block break," said Fr. Sharon Bradley.

Four days was definitely a short period of time to decide on a whole new group of friends. "You are literally rushed," Cathy said, but after eating all that food at the parties, Lexie was glad it went so fast because she felt "ten pounds heavier". Fr. Molly Reeves said, "Now I can get to know the girls in my house and get smashed!"

Kappa Sigma

In many ways, 1986 will be remembered as a special year for Kappa Sigma. It marks the graduation of a group who, four years previously, catalyzed a trend toward growth. In four years, Kappa Sigma's membership has tripled, and its brotherhood has intensified. Judging from the '86 initiates, this tradition will continue for another four years. Often times, growth is achieved by releasing old ways and embracing new ones. This year, under the leadership of President Macrae Wylde, Kappa Sigma redesigned its initiation program, and met overwhelming success. Finally, 1986 will be remembered for the achievement of Senior Marty Wakelyn, who's lifelong dream of playing in the NHL became a reality.

Speed Demons

"Our coach tells new recruits that cross-country is like a mini-sorority, and really that is the best way to describe our team," stated Soph. Mia Cadmus. "Friends suffering together develop a special sort of closeness," Mia continued. Women's cross-country, although a young and relatively inexperienced team, learned to work together. The team placed more importance on individual accomplishment than on a win-loss record. Commented Junior Rita Lewis, "We tried to break our personal bests."

The opportunity to travel throughout the Midwest was an enticing aspect noted by many of the team's members. Sr. Kristy Olsen was amazed that "our little team could be flown up to Iowa." Not only did the team fly by air, but many of the members giggled about the excessive speeds at which they drove across the country. Members of the team recall challenging one another to drag as well as the resulting speeding ticket. Mia added, "if we could have run as fast as we drove, we would have had quite a record!"

When asked about what made the team unique, an unanimous reply was, "Coach Bonnie Everhart". "She wasn't out for us to win or die, but just to do our best," Rita explained. Although the season had come to its end, the friendships made in cross-country remain strong.

Lumber, "Smelly Mats", Snoring

For many people, walking to the refrigerator during Cosby Show commercials was the extent of their exercise program. The men's cross country ran a minimum of ten miles a day. "We really pushed hard because we wanted to go to nationals," said Sr. Jeff Moline, "sometimes we would go on two-hour runs at the Garden of the Gods."

Most of the intense training was the responsibility of each individual runner. "Two days a week we train at the Olympic Training Center, but mostly we train independently," said Fr. Matt Mueller.

Aside from rigid work-outs, the men found time to play too. A few times they went to Coach Ted Castaneda's house to watch movies. "He's a great guy and everyone is close to him," said Jeff. Other memorable events included the annual trip to Adam's State - they slept on the "smelly mats" in the wrestling room - and the trip to Happy Chef in Kansas.

No matter where they went though, one of the general goals was to avoid sleeping in the same room as Sr. Dan Dinell because as Jeff put it, "he snores way loud!" But for others avoiding the police would have been more appropriate. "This one guy saw some unguarded lumber on one of our runs and apparently decided to steal some one night. He got arrested, and we never saw him again."

Recognition All The Same

Arguments are enough to drive someone crazy, but imagine arguing in four or five different languages. That was what the women's field hockey team had to deal with on their trip to Santa Fe. "We walked out on the field, and all we saw were nine guys and two girls arguing in all these strange languages," said Captain, Fr. Kathy Young.

Though field hockey was only a club, many of the women had played for years. Captain, Soph. Annick Parker - Brady said, "In Holland everyone plays, but in the United States only women play, and it is popular in the east. The hardest thing was trying to get people to recognize field hockey as a sport."

The women did finally get some recognition though. They got team uniforms and their first coach. Eileen Buehler, a local ex-field hockey player, was given the coaching position. Jr. Liz Moodie said, "It was nice to finally get our own coach. It has always been a matter of students nursing other students and running practices."

They didn't have the greatest record, but as Annick said, "Our objective wasn't winning, but to become better and stronger. We are just a group of friends going out and playing together."

Gotta Love It!

Most people would be appalled at the idea of taking a twenty hour bus ride, but the football team did it at least once a year. "Everytime we go to Trinity, we get lost," said Jr. Todd Carroll. That was the main reason the Trinity bus ride took so long. When they got off that bus, they were as relieved as they were at the end of their season.

"It was horrible losing. We were all tired and beat-up," Todd said. The one thing that kept them together was friendship as Sr. Tom Elliott said, "There was more togetherness than I've ever experienced in my fourteen years of football."

Another thing that kept them together was their attitude toward the game itself. "To play football here is kinda tough because there are no scholarships. You gotta love it!" explained Jr. Bill Young. Jr. Scott Campbell agreed, "We're just a bunch of good guys who play because we love the game."

Losing wasn't so bad though. They kept positive attitudes and even had some good laughs. One time, Jr. Steve Timmons filled Scott's helmet with foot powder to get him back for a cheap shot thrown on the field. Needless to say, Scott took a few showers that day.

Jokes and friendship were the key elements to the football team. They didn't get down on each other and that is what made them so close. As Todd said, "The greatest friends you could ever make are here. I don't think I'd be here right now if I didn't have the friends that I do on this team."

Underdogs Of Youth And Inexperience

Youth and inexperience go hand in hand in most cases. This was true of Women's Soccer team, carrying twelve freshman in their first year of division one competition. Sr. Capt. Sharon Hogue said, "We went into the national finals as the underdogs, but we hadn't even expected to go that far."

The women tigers finished with a record of 16-5 and will be ranked third or fourth in the nation for the beginning of the 1986 season. For youth and inexperience they made a good showing. "Whether we won or lost didn't matter. We just played to our expectations," Sharon added.

The team seemed to ride an "emotional roller-coaster" throughout the season. Watching from the sidelines, their talent was obvious. Their confidence was a little shaky, but in the end they came through and were semi-finalists in the best college division of women's soccer in the country.

Maybe it was the endless hours of practice that took them that far, or maybe it was just close-knit attitude of the whole team. In any case, they proved that they could not only compete in the "big leagues", but that they could win in them too. And Fr. Jennifer Murphree said, "We're gonna be a powerhouse in the future."

Celebrities From Colorado

Most people knew that a soccer player's worst nightmare was scoring a goal for the other team, and Soph. Mike Fraterelli had that unfortunate experience. "We were playing the University of California at San Diego in the first round of the playoffs, and the score was 2-1, San Diego, with eight minutes left. A ball came flying in at the goal, and I headed it in for the other team," Mike explained.

Although losing in the first round of playoff competition for the fifth year in a row was a disappointment, the team had lots of other memories to make up for it. At Grinnell, in Iowa, they went to an all-campus toga party. Jr. Greg Kazemi said, "We're celebrities there because we're from Colorado, and we ended up being the life of the party."

Another of their fun-filled road-trips included being stranded in the middle of the New Mexico desert at one o'clock in the morning. "Horst ran out of gas and after about an hour and a half of trying to flag down trucks, someone finally stopped," said Mike.

There were also some funny players like Sr. Jacques Lemvo who kissed the corner flags whenever he scored a goal. "God he was a wild man!" said Mike chuckling.

No Encouragement Needed Here

Mickey Mouse ears, hawaiian shirts, and collegiate sweatshirts were purchased by tourists as souvenirs, but when the volleyball team was in Iowa, Elissa Breitbard found something else to take home. "We stayed on a farm, and Elissa got to ride on a tractor for the first time - she's from L.A. It was hilarious! She brought home an ear of corn in a plastic baggie," said Captain Sr. Susie Grimm.

That was just one of the escapades the volleyball team took part in. In Kansas, they "borrowed" a painting from the hotel to use as their mascot in the tournament; it was a tiger, of course!

It was this impulsive fun that brought the team together and carried them to the quarterfinals of the NCAA Div. III playoffs. As Jr. Alex Reich said, "We had a great time wherever we went."

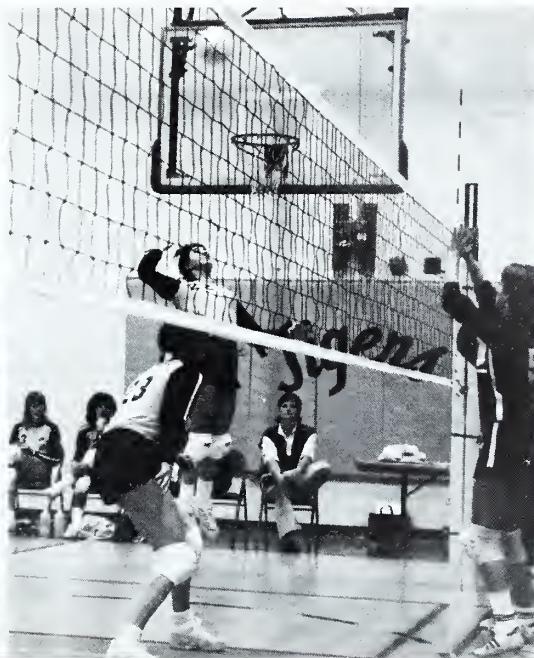

Having a good time wasn't the only key to an impressive season and a 40-10 record though. The lady tigers got a new coach, who, as Soph. Amy Smith said, "brought out our talent and potential. We were in a new situation and both sides had a lot of enthusiasm." "She completely changed our attitudes," added Alex.

With such a successful season one would expect at least one dominating force, but the team didn't have one. Every tournament brought out a new MVP. As Amy said, "We are definitely a team. We had no stars, but that was good, because it kept things humble."

We've Got Style

Our style is really fun to watch," Sr. Dave Cortez explained. Entertaining the fans was one of the primary focuses of the men's basketball team. Coaches Jim Cross, Dave Adams, and Craig Rogers provided exciting running games; running not only wears the opponent down, but also makes the game fast-paced and keeps the fans on the edges of their seats. Running greatly helped the Tigers because as Cortez and Jr. Rob Bogue pointed out, the team was outmanned by their opponents.

Another act that highlighted the season and inspired the players was the women's basketball team - they made pyramids and chanted tiger cheers at each home game. The men returned the support when they could because as Cortez said, "It was greatly appreciated because we didn't draw a huge crowd - they were our devoted fans."

Although these tigers had their own special style and their own devoted fan club, they had a long string of two point losses that left them, in Jr. Dave Rakel's words, "an underdog every game." Basketball became "a very physical game"; along with the new aspect of running, the team members managed to get in quite a few fights. "We were kidded for boxing instead of playing basketball," Rakel laughed.

Bogue was a new addition this year, and he admitted that he didn't know what to expect. The block breaks of movies and parties were a welcome surprise. And as he said, "We shared a lot of laughs all season long."

Short In Height, Not Laughs

Sharing a zeal for fun, the members of the Women's Basketball team struggled to see who would get the last laugh on who. These clowns varied greatly:

Coach Beth Branson whose ideas and new plays always came from a dream she had the night before . . .

Fr. Debbie Cotton who was famous for her pigeon-toed stance when shooting baskets. . .

"Insecure" (HA HA) Amy Rosenfield who always insisted upon holding on to someone's ear lobe or shoe lace. . .

Needless to say, the year was stuffed full of jokes, practice, jokes, road trips, jokes, competitions, and, of course, laughs, and laughs, and laughs. . .

Amy, though, seemed to rise above them all and was named the team comedian by Brenda Hull. Regardless of "Let Amy play", signs made by Fr. Theresa Doi and Terri Livermore, Amy rarely got to experiment with her talents on the court. When she did, however, "cheers and chaos broke loose", described Fr. Ellen Furness.

Often puzzled by Amy's aim, Terri asked Amy what she was looking at when she shot the ball and Amy responded, "At God" HA HA.

During the game at Durango, Amy poked fun at one of her opponents who was wearing too much make-up. "I'm being chased by the Mary Kay lady!" she yelled. And when Amy fell making a shot it was because the Mary Kay lady had sprayed perfume in her eye. After the game, Amy swore she saw the Mary Kay lady get into a car with her pink poodle. But that wasn't the end, Amy was haunted by a visit when team members dressed up like her consultants. HA HA.

It was up to Coach Branson to try to harness these unsuppressable women and form some women and form some direction for the team to follow out of the chaos. Youthful Branson graduated from C.C. last year and had played with most of the girls on the team. But she wasn't afraid to push the women full force, as Debbie said, "just when she'd almost killed us, we'd break for ice cream."

During practice, Ellen formed a bad habit of never retrieving balls. To teach her a lesson, Terri piled all the balls in the corners before practice. When Ellen got there, Terri told her it was an accumulation from all year and that there weren't any basketballs left to play with. HA HA

Laughs continued when the men's and women's traveled together. Renting two motor homes, the teams headed out on a 40 hour trip to Iowa. Stopping at a relatives house for a pit stop, the guys caught some sleepy women off guard and sent them on to the wrong house. Then, on another trip, the teams joined forces and crashed a private party at a hotel they were staying at. The security made a lot of rounds that night!

Assessing the women's basketball team with a smirk, Debbie said, "We were all a bunch of clowns and no one was funny!"

Alone In Their League

No one saw much of the hockey players during their season except for Saturday nights. Three hours of practice was demanded each day; so, the team "liked to make practice fun". Even though they were necessarily seclusive during season, most people recognized all the hockey players either for being a Division I team or for being in good shape. "We give each other lots of shit and cheer each other up when we need it." Sr. Dan Brennan said that he thought that hockey players are identified too much as a group, and, therefore, often unfairly stereotyped by faculty and students alike.

Interviewing these team members wasn't an easy task. They were always laughing but couldn't tell you why because as Fr. Guy Gadowski said, "The funny moments I remember, you wouldn't be able to print!" All that he could say was that Sr. Dan Brennan made practice very interesting. Brennan was equally closed-mouthed about inside jokes, claiming that they were all "dirty, sick and perverted". But, he did mention something about odd shower activities and advised against reaching for the soap. Giving an example of their disarranged sense of humor, Brennan said that some of the guys were known for getting a kick out of old ladies who fell in the middle of an airport.

Due to their tight schedules, most of the roadtrips weren't too eventful. Gadowski's favorite trip was to Boston, but the only reason he gave was the nice hotel where they stayed: "The bathrooms had shower caps - that's style." Other than that the only other memorable occurrence was the coach's reoccurring sore neck that he got from staring at girls in the airport.

Closing the season, the Kappa Sig's threw a D.U. "Sucks" party after C.C. lost to their rival D.U. Brennan modestly concluded, "They're going to miss me because I was one of the best players and I have one of the best conditioned bodies."

Big Victories

The Men's Club Hockey Team had a successful season, which was conducted by Sr. Tucker Mixon and Sr. Jim Gile. Their combined efforts made this one of the best run teams in recent years. Better organization paid off on the ice, as the team compiled an 8-7 record. The Tigers scored big victories over their two greatest rivals, C.U. and the Pueblo Ravens.

The addition of many former varsity players and freshmen gave the team greater depth. This variety of players pulled the team together and increased support for the team. The desire to have fun was the main ingredient in the team's success.

Looking Rocky Mountain High

Demonstrating gusty determination and strong ability, the Squash Team ended with a successful winning season. The young coaching staff of Mike Hassell and Warren Dean predicted a building season, which turned out to be a year full of pleasant surprises. The team was led by Sr.s John Crawford and John Hansell, tennis standout and first year squash player. Hansell explained, "Once you have had the basic foundation of the tennis game, the transition to squash is fairly simple."

The relentless will to win proved to be the force that brought about wins over many teams from around the area including the Air Force Academy. The Cadets were expecting an easy win, that was denied by clutch victories from Ted Stikeleather, Rob Lynch, and Nick Bischoff. Obnoxiously talented Bischoff said, "I lost my first match of the year, but ever since I've kicked quite a few buttocks."

The Tiger's chief nemesis, The Colorado Springs' YMCA, took two out of three hard-fought matches from our team. However, the final match of the season between the two rivals proved to be a thriller. The YMCA, including a few C.C. graduates, had the eye of a Tiger, but came up short, losing by the score of eight to two.

The team headed down to Texas for the Rocky Mountain/Southwest Inter-Collegiate Tournament seeking a team title for the second straight year. The squash season ended looking Rocky Mountain high.

Those Surprising Dolls

Looking forward to shaving arms, legs, feet, fingers, and backs, CC women plunged into the season. an overwhelming number of anxious freshmen swimmers were ready to test their talent in the water. Coach Joani Schofield often had a difficult time swimming all the women in each meet. The season began in late October, but the team members had been running, aerobicing, and lifting since early September.

After a break at Christmas, the Tiger Dolls began preparation for fifth block break and sunny California, which was exactly that — until the team arrived. It was a sad note to learn that Denver was warmer than Pasadena, especially in late January. For two of the three days that the Tiger Dolls stayed in Southern California, rain dampened the streets and almost everything else. Spirits remained high since many of the members had never ventured so far West.

"Everything in California went wrong — the weather, the cold (and outdoor pools!!!), the first hotel, which was a mess both inside and out — but as strange as it may sound, I loved it," said distance swimmer, Freshman Kelley Boettcher. "Being in California and near the Pacific was satisfaction enough for me," Freshman Brigitta Robinson added. Not only was the trip fun, but it also proved to be very successful, winning three of the four meets.

The Tiger Dolls impressed Coach Schofield and kept winning meet after meet. Another surprise this season was Freshman Beth Olsen's diving and Freshman Kelley Boettcher's freestyle — both set school records and qualified for Nationals. Olsen went on her way to an Upper Division, competing in Arkansas. The grand finale of the season was, however, at the annual Big Cat Brawl where all of the built up anxieties of the year were finally released. Luckily, everyone escaped any serious injuries!

It's Not All Glamour

What do you get when you put together lots of snow, 10 men with goggled-tans and sexy legs, workouts at the Broadmoor, 3 National qualifiers, 3 plane tickets to Killington, Vermont for Nationals, a trip for only 2 home (since someone lost his plane ticket), free ski lift passes to races in Aspen, Crested Butte, Sundance, Keystone, and Vail, and not one single injury???????

Well, it sure as hell is not the Women's Swim Team! The top seven pairs of legs, coached by Mark Rinehart, took not only 3rd in Conference, but also 4th in Nationals. What makes Men's Team so unique? Well, Charlie Schwartz said, "I don't know... winning!"

Skiing is probably the most expensive sport, but, ironically, receives very little financial support from the school. Dan Kim explained, "They pay for our plane tickets and ski lifts, but we often have to pay for our own lodging, and food." This was not cheap considering how much they travelled. Trips included the hot springs in Utah where the team enacted the "assorted antics of the mudheads," as Schwartz called it.

Now who lost their plane ticket back to C.C.? Hitchhiking to New Hampshire to visit a friend, Steve Johnston left his backpack in a car. Luckily, he met the same girl later and she returned the missing bag. But to his great distress, Johnston found his plane ticket was gone when he arrived at the airport. The only solution was an inexpensive flight on People's Express - which didn't arrive until 3:00 a.m.!

- Amy Hightower and Suzanne Leahy

Reckless Abandon

With this motto to guide them, "Reckless Abandon", the Women's Ski Team had an outstanding season. With memories of snow-swimming contests at the Aspen hot tub party and skiing in trash bags in the torrential rainstorms in Utah (and you thought Utah was known for powder!), the team members managed to combine fun with hard work.

In a league with more than 100 teams, the women placed 4th in the NCSA National Championships. Also the Women's Ski Team or the C.C. Racing Team stole 3rd place from its rival BYU, who had earlier beaten the women in the Rocky Mountain Championships. And, as the conclusion of the season drew near, Sr. Allison Grimm and Soph. Mert Tierney were named to the 2nd Team All American, capping the season with 6th place in the giant slalom.

LOSING GAMES AND MONEY

The team was leaping out of the dugout. The crowd was out of control. C.C. had beaten D.U. in baseball for the first time in seven years.

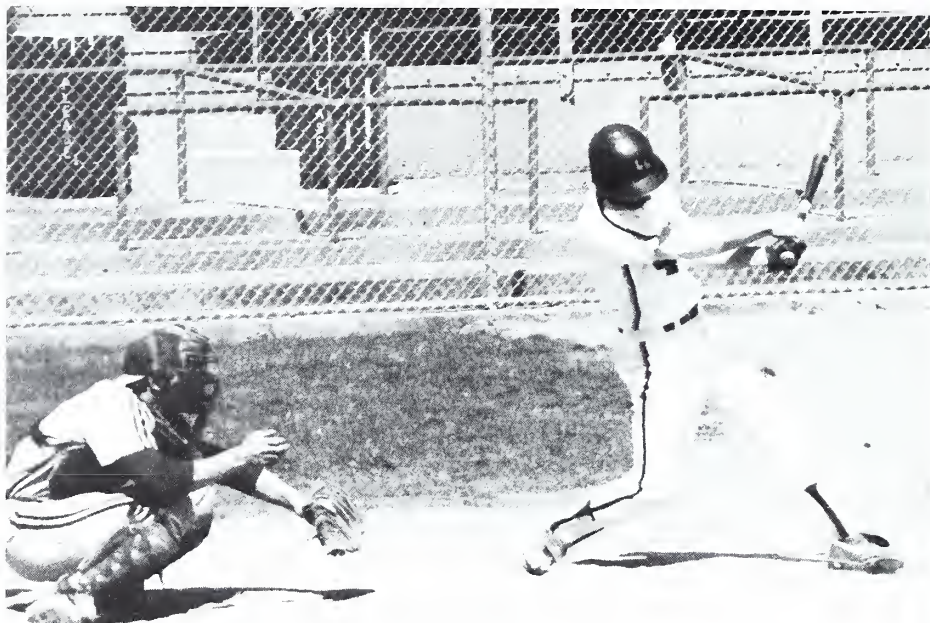

This was a high point in the season, but it was on the whole, a disappointing year. The Tigers went 10-19 and didn't win one game in California over spring break. Jr. Dana Rademacher said, "California is where we need to win to get recognition."

Maybe they didn't get recognition in Cal., but they got entertained. "We stayed at this dive of a hotel and someone got thrown out of a window one night," said Jr. Kevin Larabee. There was another surprise for the guys when their opponent at Pacific Coast Baptist College stood around home plate and said a prayer.

California was wild, and so were the guys, until they got to Las Vegas. "Everyone mellowed out because they aren't as boisterous when they are out of money," Kevin said. "I don't think anyone won," Dana added.

Although they didn't have a great record, they did improve, and with the new guidance of Coach Steve Mendel, they are, as Kevin said, "Making strides to make baseball at C.C. more competitive."

Scamming: Beaches And Bars

When people think of golf they usually don't relate to it to scamming, but Soph. Greg Ewald uncovered some incriminating evidence of such "fore" play that took place when the golf team went to California.

"We went to a bar, and I sat and drank while the other guys scammed. It was so funny watching the three freshmen I was with try to pick up on women who were five years older than them." Greg might not have scammed at the bars, but even he "looked at girls" when the team was at the beach.

Being on the team wasn't all fun and games though. The players had to try out each week for the upcoming tournaments, and most of the time, five different men played in every match. Despite the variety in the weekly teams, the Tigers still finished seventh out of the fifteen teams.

Coach Jerry Carle kept them playing and expanded their vocabularies at the same time. "We learned how to say son of a B—— without completing the last word," said Greg.

This phrase didn't help to relieve Sr. Jim Murphy's anger though. He missed a shot and "wrapped his sand wedge around a tree", but as Sr. Kip Roe explained, "he said he'd never use it again anyway."

From playing on the beach to playing on the course, the golf team did have a good time. Kip added, "No matter how bad we were, Coach Carle kept us laughing."

Knowing Your Lacrosse

"He's tough to play for, but he knows his lacrosse," said Jr. Jack Foster about Coach Tom Kay. By the end of the season, the players were also beginning to "know their lacrosse".

Although their record was 9-6, they finished second in the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference, and they did so despite what Sr. Jimmy Cramer called "an up and down year". When one of the key players was injured, the team got off the rollercoaster ride they were on and started winning. As Jimmy explained,

"At the end of the year we started playing as a team, and we were strong.

The team played their final games in Ohio where goalie, Jr. Devan Standard and his teammates only allowed an average of two goals per game. It was a difficult task, but it was a nice way to end the season, and as Jack said, "We are a young team, and we have a lot of potential."

A Winning Record

"It was nothing fantastic, but it is . . . a winning record, which is more than a lot of the other varsity teams achieved," Soph. Lance Encell commented on the Men's Tennis Team's record. Not living up to their potential, for the first time in four years, the Tigers did not win their own invitational tournament. This was indicative of the season's colorless play.

Despite the frustration which marked the tennis season, there were some highlights. The majority of the team was at their best in California over Spring break. "Big John Hansell", Kyle "The Rat" Fedler, Encell, and Bill Aldrege all went undefeated in their singles competition. Only letting five matches get by him all year, "Cell" proved to be the most successful of the Tigers, in the fifth position.

In addition to the individual successes of the team members, the end of the season was celebrated at the team's party. The Men's Tennis Team may not have captured the glory they sought, but the season, at least, did not end in despair and disappointment.
